HOME MINING PROBLEM. NATIONALISATION BILL REJECTED. (Reuter's Service.)

London, May 16.
The House of Commons, by 264 votes to 168, has refused the second reading of a Bill, moved by a Labourite, providing for the nationalisation of the mines by purchase and their transference to a Mining Council to be provided over by a Minister of Mines, but without giving compensation by royalties.
The mover stated that six persons were drawing royalties amounting to over half a million sterling yearly, which was more than 3,500 miners received.
The rejection of the Bill was moved by a Conservative, who described it as a rash and disastrous experiment.
The rejection was seconded by a Liberal.
Mr. Shinwell said the Government wholeheartedly accepted the principle of the Bill, though it recognised that the country had not given a mandate for the nationalisation of the mines.
Mr. Lloyd George, who was repeatedly interrupted by Labourites, denounced the Bill as establishing a gigantic coal trust in the interests of one section of the community, but he was sure that the House would not examine in any partisan spirit any broad-minded proposal to improve the miners' lot. (Cheers).
The Liberal vote was split.

HOME CRICKET MATCHES. NOTTS DEFEATS SOUTH AFRICANS.

London, May 16.
At Nottingham, Notts beat the South Africans by three wickets. Notts scored 238 for 7, George Gunn contributing 58 and John Gunn 89, not out.
At Lord's, Middlesex defeated Warwickshire by an innings and 9 runs. For Middlesex, Dales scored 109, not out.
Surrey drew with Somerset at the Oval, Surrey leading on the first innings. For Somerset, Lyon in their first knock compiled 95.
Leicestershire at Leyton beat Essex by seven wickets. For the winners Astill in their second innings knocked out 75, not out.
At Liverpool, Lancashire beat Glamorgan by 128 runs. In their first innings the Lancastrians scored 49, Spencer taking 5 wickets for 9 runs, but in the second they scored 208 for 8 and declared. Glamorgan's first knock produced 22, Parkin taking 6 for 6 and R. Tyldesley 4 for 16; and in their second innings they compiled 107, Parkin taking 4 for 30.

FRANCE AND THE RUHR.

M. POINCARÉ'S LETTER TO BRITISH PREMIER.
Paris, May 16.
The French Ambassador in London has handed to Mr. Ramsay MacDonald the letter from M. Poincaré, mentioned earlier, in which he submits certain points of principle which appeared to M. Poincaré would facilitate putting in execution the Experts' Report. He also deals at some length with the question of the Ruhr, and emphasises the importance of allowing some latitude to the specialists appointed to supervise the change of regime in the railway, with a view to putting the Experts' Report into operation without loss of time when the time comes.

U. S. IMMIGRATION BILL.

NOW BEFORE PRESIDENT COOLIDGE.
Washington, May 16.
After passing the House of Representatives by 308 votes to 308 and the Senate by 69 votes to 9 the immigration Bill, with a provision excluding Asiatics after July 1st, is now before President Coolidge, who will probably send the measure to the State and Labour Departments for recommendations before determining to sign or veto it.

GERMAN CONSUL.

DR. REMY APPOINTED TO HONGKONG.
For the first time since the war Hongkong now has a German Consul. A notification to this effect appears in to-day's Governor's Gazette.
The new Consul is Dr. E. Remy, who is at present also General for Germany at Canton.

GERMANY AND THE SOVIET.

Police Raid Recalled.
Berlin, May 16.
The police report that they have again arrested the wanted Communist, Rosenhardt, in the house of a member of the Russian trade delegation, where he had apparently been hiding for a fortnight. The German Government apparently is prepared to accede to the Russian demand to pay compensation for any damage done inside the delegation office, but is unwilling to recognize the extrajudicial rights thereof, or agree to punish the responsible police officials, notwithstanding that the police superintendent has already been suspended. (Reuter).

"EASMA" BEACH.

OPENING ON EMPIRE DAY.
We learn this morning that the popular "Easma" bathing beach, on Stonecutter's Island, is officially being opened on Saturday next—Empire Day, though it will be open to use for members on Wednesday next. New matchboxes have been erected and facilities have been provided for the supply of afternoon tea and other refreshments.
It will be remembered that last year, when the beach was first opened, frequent typhoon weather seriously interfered with the Committee's arrangements and it is to be hoped that better fortune will be experienced this year.

PREVENTION OF CRUELTY. GOOD NEWS FOR LOVERS OF ANIMALS.

Local animals, including birds and "every other creature"—to use the words of the official announcement—are to have special protection in the near future.
The provisions of a new Ordinance providing for the prevention of cruelty to animals are published in the current Gazette, and the "objects and reasons" set forth the intentions of the Government in the matter.
It is intended to publish broadcast in the Chinese language the provisions of Clause 3, considered the most important of all, as it explains in detail the various kinds of cruelty which the Ordinance will prohibit. These are some of the things which must not be done, under pain of appearance before the Magistrate:—
Beating, ill-treating or over-loading an animal; causing any unnecessary pain or suffering; importing or exporting living creatures without proper provision of space, food or water; carrying more than one cat or dog in a cage; conveyance of pigs in baskets which allow the limbs to protrude; loading or discharging animals in a manner such as to cause suffering; any improper conveying or confinement of living creatures—such as carrying fowls and other birds head downwards, by the wings or legs, or with wings tied together; over crowding; placing loads upon baskets or crates containing living creatures; and failure by keepers of bird shops for all the birds in the cages. Amongst other acts of cruelty which will promptly be punished are:—Mutilation or injury of captive creatures, or failure to supply them with sufficient food, water, light or ventilation; administration of any poisonous substance to any captive animal, or the performance on same of any operation in which proper care and humanity is not exercised; and inflicting unnecessary suffering during slaughter for food.

THE PENALTIES.

The Magistrate is to have power to order the destruction of any creature if satisfied that it would be cruel to keep it alive, and the owner shall be liable for expenses thus incurred. In addition to any other punishment, an owner can be deprived of any animal treated cruelly.

Powers of arrest, entry and search are given; also temporary care by the police or an S.P.C.A. Inspector of any creature to be produced in evidence.

The breach of any regulation under this Ordinance shall be punishable with a fine not exceeding $250 and imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months.

The master of any vessel on which an offence might be committed shall be deemed liable in addition to the actual offender.

The Ordinance brings together and consolidates several somewhat scattered regulations already in force.

ANOTHER OPIUM HAUL.

BAIL FIXED AT $153,000.

Consequent on the seizure of 1,500 tons of prepared opium from a junk which was unloading at the Preya off Wing Lok Street yesterday, an application for forfeiture of the boat was made by the Revenue Department, before Mr. R. E. Lindell at the Police Court to-day.

Bail for the boatwoman arrested in the case has been fixed at $153,000.

TURF TOPICS.

AH FOOK'S VARIED CAREER.

[By "ARGUS JUNIOR."]

Born at Namtau in 1874, Ah Fook, at the age of 12, was apprenticed by his father to a Chinese, named "Charlie," who ran a livery stables in Hongkong. "Charlie" owned a number of gharries imported from Singapore, which, pulled by Canton ponies, used to play for hire on the streets. The rates were 80 cents the first hour and 30 cents each succeeding hour. Ah Fook rode on the "dickie" behind the gharri, his business being to open the door, collect fares, clear the road of pedestrians, etc. At the end of a two years' apprenticeship, Ah Fook obtained work as a mafao in the stables of the late Mr. R. Fraser-Smith, founder and proprietor of the Hongkong Telegraph. Mr. Fraser-Smith was that year the owner of Shamrock, The Black Watch, Donald, Mac, Toons, Duncan Gray, Navigator, Tosh, all classed as racing ponies, and a hack called Robin Gray. At the annual meeting the only winners in the stables were the two last-named. Tosh, after running second in the Jockey Cup with Mr. Hong up, and third in the Comrades' Cup with Mr. Maclean in the saddle, carried the last-named to victory in the N.I. Desperandum Stakes (4 furlongs), the time being 1.09. On the "Off Day," Robin Gray, ridden by Mr. Collinson, won the Hack Race. Ah Fook's duties inter alia were to lead the ponies at walking exercises. Tosh was his charge and to the pony's success may be attributed Ah Fook's returning to a racing stable, after making two trips to Hamburg. The trip abroad was taken in 1890, after he had been employed in Mr. John Kennedy's stables for 18 months as mafao and clipping boy. His pay was $8 per month as a mafao and $3 as clipping boy. He helped with some of Mr. Cruickshank's ponies and occasionally was allowed to "ride work." Asked why he went to sea, Ah Fook told me that he wished to master the English tongue and was at the time, under the belief that all "foreigners" spoke English. Be that as it may, he signed on as washerman on board the German steamer Klabow, running between Tsingtau and Hamburg. He made two round trips on the vessel, the second time as pantry-boy. When the vessel returned here after the second voyage, Ah Fook had the good fortune to meet Mr. Cruickshank in the street. He obtained a post as head mafao and riding boy and after Mr. Cruickshank retired was retained by Mr. Gresson and Mr. John Johnstone. His service with the Princely House extended over 14 years and enabled him to learn valuable lessons in the art of training.

In 1913, Ah Fook rejoined the Kennedy Stables and has served successively under Mr. David Kennedy, Mr. G. W. Gegg, Mr. E. F. Scull, Mr. Silva and the present manager, Mr. E. C. Rook. Ah Fook's present position is No. 1 mafao at the Jockey Club Stables, and public trainer. His string consists of Loch Rinnoch, Gray Dragon, The Wont, Petrol King, Mongolian Prince, Barcelona, Yellow River, Spectator, Uncle George, Belle Isle, Full House and four griffins.

Latest news is to the effect that Major MacLaren, the British round-the-world flier, has reached Calcutta, having done the flight from Allahabad in six hours. He is likely to remain in Calcutta for a few days, and will then proceed to Bombay and thence to Madras.

SUN YAT-SEN.

ANOTHER OFFICIAL DENIAL.

With regard to the recent rumours of the death of Dr. Sun Yat-sen, Reuter's Agency advises us that it has received the following cable:—
"Generalissimo's Headquarters, Canton, 15th May, 1924.—The reported death of Dr. Sun Yat-sen is entirely unfounded. He is indisposed a fortnight ago, owing to a strenuous day on May 1st, when he addressed several meetings. He is now completely recovered, his medical adviser, Dr. Kummel, having ceased attendance over a week ago.—Eugene Chan."

Yesterday's Canton Gazette states that strict orders have been issued by the Police Department of Canton prohibiting the spreading of false rumours about the condition of Dr. Sun. It states that the false rumours circulated were made use of by the enemies of the Government with a view to creating disturbance in the city, and it is added that anyone found making such discreditable rumours will be severely dealt with.

In the course of a leading article regarding the spread of these rumours, the Canton Gazette states that "last Tuesday and Wednesday, the Hongkong papers like the China Mail and Telegraph, published sensational reports of Dr. Sun's death." We are calling upon our Canton contemporary to retract this statement so far as the Telegraph is concerned, because at no time have we stated that Dr. Sun Yat-sen was dead.

charge of Mr. Fraser-Smith's Tosh. He is especially proud of the performances of Mr. John Peel's Corby, which won the Derby of 1905, with Mr. Gresson in the saddle, and also won the Champions the same year, ridden by Mr. Moller. Homocoe, winner of the Valley Stakes in 1907, is the best subscription griffin ever seen here according to Ah Fook. Among other winners, many will remember Match-box, Smoke-box, Snuff-box and Target (for Mr. Dyor) and Speckled Mouse and Country Mouse which were placed in Ah Fook's charge by Mr. Henry Humphreys.

The first annual meeting attended by Ah Fook was in 1888. The meeting is memorable for the dead-heat on the second day between Silk and Mead and Light-foot for first place, with Happy-go-Lucky and Punchinello dead heat for second. The race for the Champions was won by Tio-pa, with Harbinger and Carolo filling the other places. Neither the first nor the third had won a race at the meeting, but the conditions were "optional to beaten ponies."

It was a sad blow to Ah Fook last year when his son, a clerk in the H. K. J. C. stables at Causeway Bay, fell a victim to consumption. Ah Fook fully acknowledged the debt he owes to his former employers at Jardine's for his present knowledge of training and stable management and he was most anxious that his son should gain the fullest insight into up-to-date methods for the care of the horse in training.

ARMED ROBBERY.

ACCOUNTANT STABBED.

A robber who entered No. 2 Lok Hing Lane early this morning, stabbed the accountant of the shop on being discovered and fled with a coat, in one of the pockets of which were five gold buttons valued at $25. Three of these were dropped by the robber in the street and were recovered.
Suffering from a wound in the face, the accountant was removed to hospital by the police.

ANOTHER MAHSUD RAID.

Constabulary Force Wiped Out.

Peshawar, May 16.
A gang of a hundred Mahsuds near Tank are reported to have wiped out a small force of frontier constabulary, of whom 11 were killed and 3 wounded. Ten rifles were captured. It is understood the enemy also suffered casualties. Reinforcements have been sent from Tank.
It is believed the attack was in retaliation for the constabulary's recently accounting for a gang of Mahsud raiders near Drabon. (Reuter).

HOLLAND AND RUSSIA.

Unacceptable Reservations.

The Hague, May 16.
Replying to the Communists, Heer Van Rooytyn said the Dutch delegates regarded the Russo-Dutch negotiations as postponed, but the Soviet regarded them as broken off; moreover the Russian reservations with regard to the application of the most-favoured nation clause were unacceptable.

Heer Troelstra, leader of the Social Democrats, expressed complete satisfaction with the Foreign Minister's explanation. (Reuter).

DIPLOMATIC FLUTTER.

Question of Treaty With Turkey.

London, May 16.
The Daily Telegraph diplomatic correspondent says—Angora is worrying greatly about Japan's delay in ratifying the Lausanne treaty, which would have rendered the treaty operative, since Britain and Italy have already ratified it. He asserts that the Turks ascribe Japan's dilatoriness to French diplomatic intervention at Tokyo, as the Poincaré Government has hitherto withheld ratification. (Reuter).

AMERICAN BASEBALL LEAGUE.

Washington, May 16.
In the American baseball league, Philadelphia lost to Detroit, 1 to 3; and Boston beat Chicago, 4 to 3. (Reuter's American Service).

DOGS OF WHITE CITY.

There was a "record" entry at the Kensington Canine Society's Championship Show held at the White City. The exhibits numbered 4,824. On the whole they were excellent, especially the Alsatians, wire and smooth fox terriers, Pekingese, and gundogs; and competition was keen. Chow came up well, their quality being very good, and the same might also be said of griffins, greyhounds, old English sheepdogs, poodles, Soluks, Samoyeds, and spaniels.

ANGLO-SOVIET NEGOTIATIONS.

London, May 16.
Official circles profess satisfaction at the progress of the Anglo-Soviet negotiations, and hopefulness of the successful outcome, notwithstanding a certain acerbity, which diplomatic correspondents state was apparent several times during yesterday's conference. A communiqué reveals a divergence of opinion on the subject of inter-governmental claims, which the British requested should be postponed on account of the technical difficulties in the assessment. The Soviet members, however, objected on the ground that the postponement would mean the shelving of the only claims they advanced, whereas Britain was only shelving part of her claims. The British members also formally proposed that compensation be paid to dispossessed British proprietors in Russia. The Soviet members promised to consider the proposal after pointing out the difficulties of evolving general formulae complicated by the difference between the British and Soviet social systems.—Reuter.

HARNETT CASE TO BE RETRIED.

London, May 16.
The Court of Appeal has handed down judgment in the Harnett case, allowing Dr. Adams to appeal, entering judgment for him with costs, and ordering a new trial of the case. Dr. Bond, who was granted costs of appeal will abide by the result of the rehearing with certain limitations.—Reuter.

[The case at issue was that of a farmer named Harnett, who was awarded £25,000 damages against two Doctors, Dr. Bond, a commissioner in lunacy, and Dr. Adam, who has a home for mental cases. Harnett was detained in asylums for over eight years, but escaped in 1921, when specialists certified him to be sane. The jury found he was sane when detained in 1912, and reasonable care was not exercised. A stay of execution has been granted pending an appeal.]

FISHES' PARADISE.

Windows in Zoo Aquarium.

The public now may see in the Zoo an assemblage of fish in model haunts comparable with the scarcely creditable wonders of the aquarium at Honolulu or Florida, says a Home paper on the eve of the opening of this new Zoo feature. They will not see quite such a phantasmagoria of exuberant colour and shape as startles a visitor to the tropics. The riot there is such that it may upset the beliefs of the most deeply engorged Darwinian. There can scarcely be use in such rich divergence. The new London aquarium is less up-to-date, but at least as valuable and pleasant. Fishermen and naturalists will exult in it. Every child who goes there will find thenceforth a new gusto in the seaside, will learn all about whales, eggs and dogfish egg cases and anemones (some only found on the shells inhabited by particular varieties of the hermit crab) of bullheads, blennies, tompots, starfish, crabs, oysters, dabs, and the rest.

The general onlooker will be not less pleased. Sole and plaice and dabs and flounder disappear from journeys in the pure sea water (all fetched from the Bay of Biscay) into delicious sand on a persuasive sea-floor. Coloured diaphanous tropical fish play hide-and-seek among living fans of coral. Perch and pike float in a sunlit river bed, and trout take oxygen baths in the continuous air bubbles of a chalk stream. You may even look up, as if you, too, were subaqueous, and note how the sea or pool or river-bed is, from the fish's angle, reflected against the surface film. The perfection of scenic mimicry is beyond praise. Nothing quite so good has been done before in England or anywhere else.

SALMON MYSTERY.

A student may spend weeks here with utter enjoyment, whether he has a particular or a general pursuit. One fresh-water tank contains a number of salmon parr, which will bide there till they turn to silver smolts, till they undergo that still mysterious sea-change and will be duly transformed to the other side of the long, semi-circular room where the seawater tanks are ranged. The salmon's life history will be visibly acted.

Some amazing special developments are illustrated. There are marsupial fish, fish that hold all their eggs in their mouth (one could see the bulging jaws) and later allow the fry to seek the same nursery. There are fish that walk on land, fish with lungs to defend them against a dry season. The strangest, perhaps, is a small Nile fish. The female leaps into the air in order to lay the eggs on a surface leaf, and the male lashes the neighbouring water with his tail to sprinkle them. There are Mexican axolotls, a larval creature that normally does not go beyond the larval state. Mr. Julian Huxley effects the metamorphosis, by doses of thyroid or pituitary gland. The Zoo ichthyologists have wrought a like miracle by compelling it to breathe air.

UNKNOWN FISH.

One fish is famous in the world. It was found in the gardens at Hongkong after the burst of some water pipes. It was given to the Zoo, and was held to be an ordinary salamander. But it grew and grew, and has now proved itself a new species hitherto unknown to science.

These are but a few random examples of the particular denizens of the aquarium; and other aquariums have as many curiosities. But none has a group so well selected, or so pleasingly, so artistically, shown. Daylight, caught and cunningly reflected, illuminates the glass-sided tanks on the one side, and artificial light the small tanks on the other; and wherever you are in the long arc you feel altogether transported from the external world, as if you had been given a dreamlike visit to another world. It is hard to believe that so pleasant a place to be in is found behind those folding doors—such clear, bubbling water, with silver bubbles, such glistening rocks and golden sand, such floating miracles in so pellucid a light. Honolulu has come to London, and gained in the transference too.

FOOD V. FLOWERS.

The Dead—East And West.

Dr. C. T. Wang gave a talk at the North China Union Language School Peking, recently, choosing as his subject, "Some Aspects of Chinese Life." Among other interpretations of customs which the stranger finds in China, Dr. Wang said he thought that the country has had such a long history because of its system of the family unit. Such a life breeds tolerance among the people.

Commenting on the apparent differences in the way of doing things in China and the West, the speaker referred to the Chinese way of showing reverence to their dead by placing food in front of the grave or the family altar. This has its counterpart in the western habit of bringing flowers to the grave of the dead. In neither case is it supposed that the dead eat the food or smell the flowers, but it is merely an outlet of expression for the feelings of the heart.—Chung Mei.

A NATURE NOTE.

Can Fireflies Flash in Unison?

Reports of the singing of locusts and the flashing of fireflies, in perfect accord, have often led to considerable discussion; and the difficulty of accounting for any such phenomenon has led some scientific men to doubt its existence. A conspicuous instance is related by Carver Wells in Asia (New York) in an article about his experiences on the Malay Peninsula. He writes:

"One evening I saw a demonstration of insect organization which I believe it is impossible to explain. It was a beautiful night. The air was full of extraordinary fireflies. About every fifteen minutes these flies separated into two armies, one settling on the trees growing on the left bank of the river and the other on the right. Then, when I had decided that the fireflies had gone to bed for the night, the whole army on the left bank gave one big flash in perfect unison, which was immediately answered by another big flash from the right. How these flies managed to keep time absolutely beats me, but they did so, though there must have been thousands of them stretching along the river banks for a hundred yards or more. The illumination was so strong that the branches of the trees could be seen quite distinctly."

TO-DAY'S MISCELLANY.

Owing to the lack of funds twenty "Eastern" propaganda centres in Baku, Transcaucasia, Transcaucasia, Turkey and Persia have been compelled to close. It is also stated that recently Chicherin, instructed by the Soviet official representatives in Eastern countries to dissociate themselves entirely from all agents and centres of the Third International in the countries to which they are accredited, and to follow a policy of peace and friendship in the East in accordance with the promises made by the Soviet Government to abstain from Communist propaganda.

Prempeh, the last King of Ashanti, who has been exiled in the Seychelles since 1896, is to return to his own country. "Subject to certain reasonable conditions," says Mr. J. H. Thomas, M.P., the Colonial Secretary, "I have approved his return at an early date as a private person, and not as king." Chosen King after a civil war in 1886, Prempeh's election was favoured by the British, and he ruled prosperously for several years. About 1893, however, he began to ignore the terms of the treaty with Britain, and after vain negotiations, a war began which ended in his seizure and dethronement.

Mr. Sydney Fawns, author of "Tin Deposits of the World," says in the Cornish Post that, taking all the factors into account, and the varying costs of production all over the world, £250 to £280 per ton is a reasonable and natural price of tin. The mine or alluvial deposit which could pay at £70 or £80 a ton is a rarity, and costs of production—labour, materials etc.—have greatly increased in the last decade. If tin went to £350 there would be mining activity everywhere, all tending to add something to the total supply. In the East many thousands of Chinamen are working in companies, but in small parties of fossil-chalkers, will then scrape a ton of tin from here and half a ton from there, and the aggregate from this amount of human effort would certainly run to some thousands of tons per annum. The immediate outlook should be good enough for all sound tin mining enterprises.

The art of mixing poison was widespread in olden times and fear of one's enemies was just as general, comments an exchange. In France it was the custom, for instance, on entertaining an honoured guest, to taste all dishes before they offered to the visitor. To eat of a dish before the host had taken of it passed as a mark of the highest confidence. When Henry IV. paid a visit to his aunt and was offered confectionery, he took a sweetmeat without requiring her to eat first; and for this mark of trust she remembered him gratefully for ever. Anything might be poisoned; not only the food itself, but any article might contain the fatal substance. A specially refined means of furthering one's enemy to the hereafter was the use of poisoned rings. Some of these instruments are still extant and may be studied in the Cluny Museum in Paris. They are of the usual form, but have a globular stone, which is hollowed out and may be opened. The opening looks like a little mouth, and is set with a number of small, fine teeth, which were saturated with poison. This "death-ring" was used as follows:—One called on the enemy who was to be murdered and shook hands in a friendly manner. The stone of the ring opened and the poisonous teeth pressed into the opponent's flesh. The poison was generally so strong as to cause death. The rings in the Paris museum are nearly all Italian of the Renaissance period, when the art of poisoning was at its height. The custom of wearing poisoned rings continued till the Revolution, when the philosopher Condorcet is supposed to have killed himself by means of the poison he had carried in a ring on his finger.

JAPAN AND SOUTH AMERICA

Will That Door Be Closed?

Osaka, Japan, May 3.—Fears that American influence may close to Japanese emigrants the doors of South America, at present offering the most hopeful outlet for Japan's surplus population, are expressed in an editorial appearing in the Osaka Asahi, which has the largest circulation in Japan. The editorial dealt at length with Japan's problems of population, food supply and emigration.

"We cannot be sure that we shall be permitted to send emigrants even to Brazil and Peru without molestation," says the Asahi, after detailing the restrictions imposed on Japanese migration by the United States and the British Empire.

"Japan's population is increasing at the rate of 600,000 a year.
If no outlet for this increase can be found, her future is a gloomy
one. There are now 36,000 Japanese in Brazil and 18,000 in Peru, and there appears to be room for many more. But the migration to South America in even such limited numbers is now the subject of discussion in a certain foreign country. It appears likely that the influence of the Pan-American creed may be extended to block us in South America."

PEER'S "REVELATIONS."

Conjurer by Profession.

Lord Knutsford enlivened the discussion on the Performing Animals Bill in the House of Lords with some of his own experiences. He was in favour of the second reading of the measure because he did not like to see animals in unnatural surroundings performing tricks; but he did not think much cruelty was practised in training animals for these performances. They were too prone to exhibit fear. Lord Knutsford continued:—

"I have had some experience in training animals, and am a conjurer by profession. I can assure Lord Raglan that, as regards the goldfish, when I am performing and produce them from behind my coat, I am the performer, and not the goldfish. It is the same with the rabbit. When I produce a rabbit from this pocket (indicating the tail of his coat), the rabbit is not performing, but I am. I have a dog who is very fond of water. If there is anything splashing in the water he will go after it.
For that reason, when I go fishing, I do not take a net or gaff, because the dog will land the fish for me. Another dog of mine likes carrying things, and he always likes to have them taken from him. If I were to give him a note to be delivered to the Lord Chancellor, he would do it, because he knows the Lord Chancellor would take the note from him. Again, I have a dog who will not eat cake unless you call it a "Banbury cake. But there is cruelty in isolated cases, and those responsible ought to be registered. I know a ruffian who has trained his dog, and whenever he shouts "Knutsford" it sits up and begs. I think that man is perpetrating a crime and should be registered."

Lord Knutsford's allusion was to the successful appeals he has made as chairman of the London Hospital. The Bill received a second reading, only three members voting against it.

HONGKONG, 17th May, 1924.

WEATHER WARNINGS.

It would appear as if at long last there are good reasons for hoping that there will be a full interchange of weather reports during the typhoon season between the various Observatories in the Far East. According to the correspondence just released by the Hongkong Chamber of Commerce, the Director of the Siccawoi Observatory has expressed his willingness to co-operate in the exchange of storm warnings, and, inasmuch as Hongkong already exchanges with Manila and the various shipping companies with wireless-equipped vessels are to join in the movement, there should during the coming typhoon season be no grounds for complaint on the score of information.

This matter of speedy circulation of storm warnings from various centres is of extreme importance to all shipping interests in the Far East. Unhappily, in the past there has been all too little co-operation, and shipping people have had very just cause for complaint. Our own Government does not appear to have been particularly sympathetic in considering and acting upon the Chamber's many representations on the subject and we note with some surprise that a period of exactly six months elapsed before the authorities replied to the Chamber's communication of September last. However, in the meantime the promised co-operation of Siccawoi has been secured, and we are hoping that material benefits will accrue therefrom.

Mastery of vessels are naturally anxious to secure the latest and most detailed information on weather conditions before leaving port during the typhoon season. Hence the suggestions put forward by the Chamber for improving the existing arrangements in this regard. Apparently, in Shanghai the Observatory officials send a man to some central position during typhoon weather, where he can be consulted by mariners. The proposal is made that here in Hongkong we should adopt a like procedure, (the official to be either at the Harbour Office or Post Office. We cannot see that there would be much utility in this step unless the Observatory man were in constant and close touch with his headquarters, but this might possibly be arranged, in which event we can quite understand that a personal conversation with master mariners might be of considerable value. The Director of the Observatory is seemingly opposed to this suggestion, but, all the same, we trust that its feasibility will be given due weight by the authorities. In matters such as these, it is impossible to possess too much information. If we are going to err at all, then let us err on the side of safety.

Britain and the Soviet.

The news from London concerning the Anglo-Soviet conference is not at all encouraging. As most observers have predicted, there has been a marked tendency on the part of the Russian delegates to obtain concessions at every turn, some of them of a nature which it is impossible the British Government could agree to. Possibly these requests are nothing more than a form of mild bluff, but all the same they create an atmosphere of dissatisfaction, and one is constantly aware of instances when Soviet delegates have thrown up their work at a conference directly some concession was not forthcoming. We think the authorities at Moscow realise by now that this is practically their last chance of coming to an agreement with Britain, and are not likely to do anything rash, but there is an unhealthy sense of inincerity pervading the whole discussion. Two of the Soviet leaders have stated publicly during the past few days sentiments which are not in accord with the policy of a constitutional Government like that of Britain. One has regretted the "lost opportunity" of promoting a Communist revolt in Germany, and the other now refers to what he considers the disproportionate influence of private enterprise in Russian trade. It is extremely doubtful whether any arrangement between the Soviet and the British Government will do much to promote the trade of Britain with Russia; and it is becoming increasingly unlikely that the two countries can maintain amicable relations with one another in the future, owing to the impossibility of trusting the Bolshevik Government to keep its word on the vital matter of intrigue and propaganda. On the whole, therefore, we hardly think the recognition of Russia and subsequent purpurs are going to have even half the good results that fervent advocates of this recognition expected. It is possible, in fact, that the overtures to the Soviet at this stage of their unrepentance will prove to have been a serious mistake.

Wages and Costs.

It is very disappointing to read of the continuous efforts by workers at home to obtain increased wages. One cannot believe that they are finding the cost of living a big burden at this late stage, for there has been no rise in the index figure for many months, apart from the slight fluctuations induced by the change of season. The general tendency during the past year has been for the cost of living to fall appreciably, and there have been no great cuts in wages, whilst in some cases labour has retained the higher scale that followed the war. Only one explanation suggests itself for the present agitation in the ranks of the workers—they hope to obtain special consideration while a Socialist element is administering the Government of the country. But in the end, if the Government gives way too much to the demands of labour, in the matter of housing, wages, and so forth, it will run the risk of defeating its avowed object of reducing the general cost of living of the whole nation. Obviously, greater wages bills mean higher prices, whether for products like coal or for manufactures of any description. Where coal is used in manufactures, a double increase in expenses becomes involved. Eventually, unless the middle classes are to be made the chief sacrifice, or employers are to be forced to restrict their profits to a miserable minimum, foreign goods—especially in the absence of protective tariffs—will seriously menace all British industries. In the case of the building-trade demands for higher wages, we

There is no truth in the story that the skeleton found this week in the compound at the Central Police Station was that of a former newspaper reporter.

MOTORING SUPPLEMENT

OF
THE HONGKONG TELEGRAPH.
SATURDAY, the 17th. May, 1924

(Being the Official Organ of the Hongkong Automobile Association).

LOCAL MOTOR NOTES & NEWS

The past week has been an extremely interesting one for local motorists. First and foremost there has been the discussion regarding the restrictions in issuing learners' licences, this question having been raised by what appeared in this column last week. The police authorities have since given figures showing how great a number of learners' licences has been issued since the beginning of the year—figures which would be impressive were it also known how many of such licences are still in force to-day. It must be safe to assume that out of the 900 odd licences issued only a comparatively small proportion of holders are actually learning to drive. It is misleading to think that over 800 men are to-day possessed of the facilities to learn. The truth of the matter is that a great many Chinese have taken out learners' licences and have never used them, which makes us think that it would be no harm to issue learners' licences to all applicants because only those possessing learning facilities, i.e., the use of a car in which to learn, would be able to be on the roads at any one time. There is only a limited number of motor vehicles in the Colony free to be used for learning purposes and to refuse a learner's licence to any applicant might result in depriving the very man who is fortunate enough to have learning facilities. We are convinced that the Traffic Department is seeking to act in the very best interests of motoring, but in this case caution has, perhaps, been allowed to outweigh other and more desirable considerations.

Whilst on the subject of the Traffic Department, a word of appreciation is due to its officers for the great amount of work they quietly perform on behalf of motorists. It is easy to criticise but even when bona fide criticism is called for, one should not forget that motoring in this Colony owes a great deal to the Department in charge of it. An enormous amount of routine work is done daily and that work is ever growing, whilst motorists know of the courtesy with which the Department is ready to listen to complaints or suggestions. It would be a pity, if because of public discussion, the Department ever had the impression that motorists were unmindful of what they owe.

Regarding the proposed new motor registration fees, published in the Hongkong Telegraph on Monday, there appears to be very general satisfaction at the discrimination proposed to be made in favour of vehicles fitted with pneumatic tyres. That heavy vehicles with solid tyres should bear a more proportionate cost of road up-keep than now is freely admitted and welcomed. The suggested scale for private cars seems reasonable enough, but an anomaly has been pointed out in the case of motor cycles fitted with sidecars, inasmuch as it was proposed that they should pay $24 per annum as against $16 by a light car. We understand that a suggestion has been put forward that cycles with sidecars should be asked to pay $16—which is only $4 more than solo motor cycles, and if that suggestion is adopted we think that owners of sidecars would have little cause for complaint. The publication of this complete new Regulations, of which the new registration fees are only a part, is being eagerly looked forward to. They have yet to be submitted to the Governor-in-Council for approval, but it is hoped that they will be passed in time to permit of the proposed registration fees, due to be renewed in June, coming into force at once.

We are in receipt of information from a correspondent at Pakhoi, to the effect that the motor road between Pakhoi and Limchow City, mentioned a short time ago, has now been completed, and that passenger traffic between the two places commenced on the 7th. of May. Our correspondent adds:—"Four motor vehicles of a well known make have arrived from Hongkong, and others are to follow. Should the pioneers of this undertaking, which is a purely native concern, manage it rightly, there is a bright future for road motor vehicles in this part of the country. The surrounding country for over fifty miles inland is almost perfectly flat. All inland waterways are too shallow for boat traffic, except for boats of the very smallest type. The completion of this new motor vehicle traffic will encounter the slow-moving chair, wheelbarrow, bullock wagon, and small boat. The advertised fares on the cars are not higher than manpower charges. Any kind of motor vehicle will not suit this traffic, owing to the construction of the roads. A special, light passenger bus is what is wanted, and these are of the type that have been imported. The Chinese are looking forward to extend these operations far into the interior, in various directions, but these developments will depend on the prosperity and management of the present undertaking."

News, such as the above, inevitably leads one to think of the time when China's roads will be such as to open up the country to automobile transport, and it takes but very little imagination to picture the tremendous business that would be open in this part of the world to manufacturers of motor cars. As yet, the importation of cars into China is but a tithe of what it will one day be, but how long that day is distant is a problem in forecasting we would rather not attempt. If a motor road can be built from Pakhoi to Limchow there is not the slightest reason why one could not be built from Hongkong to Canton, provided the neighbouring province were peacefully governed and the freedom of the road assured. It is lack of that assurance that is hindering China's road development as a whole and there will be needed the exercise of much patience before the day comes when communications in China are in any way comparable to those of civilised countries.

Our attention has been drawn during the past week to the fact that lorries, using Stubbs' Road to the Peak, are often overcrowded with workmen riding as passengers, who not only sit on whatever cargo the truck is carrying at the time but who crowd into the driver's seat. Our informant states that he has seen as many as four and five workmen sitting up along side the driver, giving the latter much too little room in which to operate the car. It has been suggested that when the new registrations are being issued, as they will be next month, owners must specify the number of seats alongside the driver and that it be made an offence for any driver to allow more than the proper number of people to sit beside him. In some such way a very real danger would be overcome.

It is pleasing to notice that good progress is being made with the work of improving the surface of main roads in the Colony, especially in the case of the Pokfulam Road and Stubbs Road. In the latter case the speed with which the work is being carried out is particularly gratifying, having regard to the lengthy period during which the road has been other than in first class condition. Between the sports field of the Hongkong University and the Dairy Farm, on the Pokfulam Road, a good deal of work has been done during the past few weeks and there is now a good road all the way to Repulse Bay.

WHAT CARS SHOULD DO.

Going on a basis of horse-power it has been found that an average open touring car should give under average touring conditions on fair roads the following petrol consumptions:—

7 h.p. car should do 50	m.p.g.
10 h.p. " " "	38-40 m.p.g.
12 h.p. " " "	35 " m.p.g.
15 h.p. " " "	25-28 m.p.g.
20 h.p. " " "	20-22 m.p.g.
30 h.p. " " "	17-19 m.p.g.
40 h.p. " " "	15-16 m.p.g.

These figures are taken as a general average over a large number of different types and makes of cars. Much of course depends on the individual car, the skill of the driver, the condition of the engine and transmission units, and similar factors, but on the average the above will be found not far removed from what a car should do. Generally speaking an increase of about 15 per cent. would result if the car had to do a fair amount of town work, and about a 10 per cent. increase if it had a closed body.

ABOUT SKIDDING.

INTERESTING DISCUSSION OF SOME FACTS.

We have received from the Standard Oil Company an extremely interesting article, prepared by the Company's Road Materials Laboratory, discussing the causes of skidding and how it may be prevented. The article is too lengthy for us to reproduce in one issue. The first part will be found below, next Saturday's Motoring Supplement containing the remaining portion.

The sensation experienced by the occupants of a skidding automobile is so unusual and the results of a skid are very often so spectacular, that the impression prevails in some quarters that skidding is the cause of a great number of automobile accidents. As a matter of fact, a careful tabulation of the causes of automobile accidents in various localities in California shows that a very small number, about 2.5 per cent during 1922, were due to skidding. Statistics compiled by the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters of New York show about 3.4 per cent. of accidents due to skidding, and an analysis of auto accidents in Iowa during 1922 made by the Highway Commission shows that 3.9 per cent. of the accidents were due to skidding.

Skidding occurs when an automobile loses its grip upon the surface with which its wheels are in contact. This grip is obtained by the friction between the tyre of the automobile and the road surface, or between the tyre and any coating which may be on the road surface.

The study of the causes of skidding is essentially a study of forces. The force which tends to cause an auto wheel to slide along a road surface is opposed by the force of friction between the tyre and the surface. As long as the sliding force does not exceed this frictional force, the wheel will not slide. As soon as the sliding force becomes greater than the force of friction, however, the wheel will slide and we have the effect of skidding. If the surface on which the wheel moves is a clean section of highway, then the frictional force opposing sliding is the friction between tyre and pavement, but if the surface is a highway section on which some force is the material such as dirt, oil or grease is present, then the frictional force is the friction between the tyre and the thin layer of foreign material on the pavement.

It follows therefore that in order to prevent skidding, we must regulate these two forces so that the force which tends to cause sliding never exceeds the force of friction between the tyre and pavement. This can be accomplished practically in two general ways,—first, by using cars in driving and various mechanical appliances, thus reducing to a minimum the force which tends to cause sliding, and, second,—by providing tyres and pavements which show a high co-efficient of friction between their surfaces of contact.

In this connection it is interesting to consider the origin of the force which tends to cause sliding. Power is applied to the wheels of a machine through the drive shaft and the axles. This power tends to cause the wheels to revolve and move the car forward. In stopping the car, the power is shut off and the brakes are applied. The brakes are applied in order to dissipate the energy of motion which the car has gained while moving. This is accomplished by the kinetic friction between the brake drum and brake band. If the car has attained a high speed and the brakes are applied so hard that the wheels lock, the energy of motion can no longer be dissipated through the kinetic friction between the brake band and the drum. At this point we have the force which tends to cause sliding present in large amount and the energy of motion will have to be dissipated by the friction between tyre and pavement as the car slides. It appears therefore that the ability of a car's brakes to dissipate the energy of motion through kinetic friction between brake band and drum, has a very important relation to skidding.

Recent developments in automotive practice indicate that this particular point has been given very careful consideration. A number of the new models of cars have been equipped with brakes on all four wheels, instead of brakes on the two rear wheels only. It is very evident that energy of motion can be dissipated twice as rapidly as with brakes on two wheels, if the same pressure is applied in both cases. It follows that with this increased ability to dissipate the energy of motion through kinetic friction the danger of skidding is correspondingly reduced.

Practical demonstrations of the following nature have been made:—A section of street was made slippery by application of some foreign substance, and a car equipped with four wheel brakes was driven toward this section at a speed of about 30 miles per hour. When the car reached the slippery street the gears were thrown out and the brakes applied. The car stopped within a short distance with no appreciable sideways motion and with no sliding of the wheels.

The brakes on the front wheels were then disconnected and the car was again driven toward the slippery street at the same speed as before. The gears were thrown out and the brakes applied as in the preceding case. The car skidded completely around in the street before stopping.

Another refinement in automobile design which tends to reduce the danger of skidding is the attention paid to the balancing of the weight of the car so as to prevent the building up of complicated forces under driving conditions. There has been noticeable improvement in the feature of automobile construction in the past and the careful attention given to the design of autos today indicates that further improvements in stability with increased resistance to skidding will be achieved in the future.

A careful consideration of the foregoing facts shows that recent improvements in automobile design and construction have reduced the danger of skidding many fold, and as these features are improved and refined in future years, the danger will undoubtedly be even more greatly reduced.

Old Time Essex Performance WITH Hudson Smoothness

The new Essex Six, built by Hudson under Hudson patents, duplicates former Essex performance from one to fifty miles an hour.

It has Hudson smoothness and reliability. It possesses the qualities for which 135,000 owners of the Essex four are so enthusiastic. Hudson type clutch, transmission and axles are used in the new Essex.

Motor starts promptly — steering is like guiding a bicycle, little attention is required to lubricate or keep car in top condition.

Economy in fuel, oil and tyres is greater. A new policy of minimum fixed prices for replacement parts guarantees lowest maintenance cost.

For the family desiring a reliable, smart car of satisfactory performance at low cost, that gives unusual gasoline, oil and tyre mileage and requires little mechanical attention, the new Essex Six provides "Ideal Transportation."

You won't be disappointed if you buy an Essex.

Buick's Twentieth and Greatest Year

It is now twenty years since Buick first began to manufacture and sell Buick motor cars.

Significant of Buick's achievements and position in the industry throughout these two decades are Buick's accomplishments in this, its twentieth year of existence.

During 1923 Buick built its MILLIONTH car.

During these same twelve months Buick broke all production records for cars of its class.

In August, 1923, after long and intensive research, Buick provided the public with the proved Buick four-wheel brakes—just as more than twenty years ago Buick added to motor car utility and efficiency by roducing the valve-in-head engine. And, for the sixth consecutive year, Buick occupies first place at the National Automobile Shows—a position awarded upon volume of business.

Noteworthy as is this record of past achievement, it assumes added meaning as a substantial promise of an even more successful future. For, from the rich background of experience—with all of its unequalled manufacturing facilities—and inspired by a deep sense of personal obligation to Buick friends, owners and the general public—Buick will seek ever to maintain on an even higher level its position as the Standard of Comparison.

OVER 150,000 FORD EMPLOYEES.

EMPLOYMENT AT ITS HIGHEST POINT.

Detroit, March 1—Employment in the Ford Motor Company's organization, it was announced yesterday, is now at the highest point in its history. The total number of employees in all of the Ford plants in the United States is approximately 157,000.

The largest number in any single manufacturing unit, is at the Highland Park plant at Detroit, where 69,500 men are at work.

Other manufacturing units, including the Lincoln car plants at Detroit, and the plants at Kearney, N. J.; Hamilton, Ohio; Green Island, N. Y.; Glassboro, Pa.; and Poughkeepsie, N. Y.; employ close to 11,000 men.

More than 4,000 men at work on the company's timber and iron ore properties in the upper peninsula of Michigan. Ford coal mines in Kentucky and West Virginia are giving employment to more than 3,500 men and the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton, the Ford railroad, employs in excess of 2,500 men.

In addition there are about 700 employees in the Henry Ford hospital at Detroit and more than 700 in the Henry Ford Trade School at Highland Park.

THE ROAD TERROR.

BY BERTON BRALEY.

When your engine's humming sweetly and the road is smooth as glass,

And you're naturally tempted to be stepping on the gas, And you "let her out a little"—up to forty-five or so, Just to test the motor's action when you really let her go, Then—you hear a sudden racket and a "pop! pop! pop! pop! pop!" And you've gotta slow to twenty—it's the Motorcycle Cop!

I suppose his wife may love him, and perhaps his children do, And I'm able to imagine that he has a friend or two, But I'll bet he keeps it secret—what his job is—if he can, And they think he's just a stick-up or a second-story man, For his family's affection would be sure to take a drop If they knew he made his living as a Motorcycle Cop!

What's the use of making engines with unmitigated power, Which will shoot along the highway at some eighty miles an hour,

If this bird upon his cycle spoils your pleasure as you drive, Swooping on you with a summons when you better thirty-five? Is there any sound more vicious than that "pop! pop! pop! pop! pop!" As you hear the motorcycle of the Motorcycle Cop?

That's about enough of jesting; for the fact is, as a rule, That the only man he's after is the drunkard or the fool, If your pace is sane and steady, if you drive with sense and skill,

He won't bother much about you as you whiz by vale and hill; It's the wild and reckless monaco that he's out to trail and stop, And the decent driver's grateful to the Motorcycle Cop!

NEW ANTI-KNOCK FUEL TESTED.

Detroit, Mich., March 30.—Another fuel is expected soon on the market to compete with the ethyl gas now being sold at filling stations in various parts of this country.

It is the gas derived from the hydrogenation process perfected by Dr. A. F. Ramago, by which low grade fuel oils may be converted into motor spirit.

Similar claims are made for this fuel as are made for the ethyl gas—prevention of carbonization and knocking in the engine.

But producers of the new fuel experimental engines with 155 pounds per square inch compression, twice as high as those in popular use, have been built and are already being tried out in this city with the Ramago gas as fuel.

Already, the experimenters report no knock under this high compression, and at the same time higher power and far better pickup with this fuel.

High compression engines, manufactured for dirigible use, and formerly using alcohol as fuel, are being tested with the Ramago fuel. Alcohol is said to lack the required heat value, to be expensive and have the fault of absorbing moisture. The new fuel has met these objections satisfactorily, and has also greatly increased the range of the engines on given fuel supply and raised their efficiency at high altitudes.

Plans are already under way for extensive marketing of the new fuel. Toledo, O., and Detroit are to be the pioneer markets.

MOTOR ROADS FOR ITALY.

A correspondent of Modern Transport furnishes some details of roads to be devoted exclusively to motor traffic now being constructed in Italy. Starting in the outskirts of Milan, one road will run direct to Sesto Calende, a distance of 30 miles, and here it will join the arterial road of the Simplon. At Lainate a branch will be run to Como, 14 miles away, and at some later date it is possible that from Como this road will be carried forward to Chiasso, at the Swiss frontier, and so become a part of an international highway. Another branch from the main route will strike out at Gallarate for Varese, having a length of 11 miles.

The scheme provides that roads of this kind shall run as far as possible parallel to existing main roads. They are to skirt all centres of population so as to permit high speeds without risk to life, but they will run as near as practicable to large industrial centres. The trunk road is 46ft. wide, with a 33ft. carriage-way, and the branch roads are 36ft. wide, with a 27ft. carriage-way. Bends are reduced to a minimum, no gradient, of which there are few, exceeds one in 33 1-3, and level crossings are being avoided. The estimated cost is £600,000—about £10,000 per mile—and the Government has guaranteed a sum not exceeding £15,000 a year. Tolls are to be levied on the vehicles using the road, and on the basis suggested it is claimed that a lorry loaded with goods and passengers will save in running expenses 14s. to 25s. on a 60-miles journey, whilst a 10-15 h.p. car will save 6s. on a similar journey.

DENNIS

COMMERCIAL Vehicles are manufactured by Messrs. DENNIS BROS. OF GUILDFORD, ENGLAND, the oldest firm in the Motor Engineering Industry, and the pioneers of the "Worm Drive."

"WORM" gear is the only gearing that shows INCREASING EFFICIENCY WITH USE. Other gears WEAR OUT. The "worm" gear—WEARS IN.

THE use of "worm" gearing in Commercial Vehicles is now almost universal. The compliment thus paid to Messrs. Dennis Bros. Ltd., by the leading makers of the world, will convince the thoughtful observer that they were RIGHT, and that he will be well advised to decide in favour of a "DENNIS" machine when adopting or extending, the use of Motor Transport.

THE POPULAR MORRIS.

1,200 CARS A WEEK.

There can be no discounting the popularity of the Morris car, for both the Cowley and the Oxford type can be counted unexhaustively, on all roads, indeed, to traverse any main road for, say a mile, without coming in sight of a Morris car, is almost a phenomenon. That Morris Motors Limited, have struck the right note with the public is patently evident from the observations of Mr. W. R. Morris the governing director of the Company, when at a dinner recently given at Coventry, by Morris Engines, Ltd., he stated that he believed, this year, his company would have an output of 1,200 cars a week. Only the week previously, he received orders for 1,200 cars. His principle, in regard to his men, was that in paying a high wage, he cheapened production. He paid his men 2s. 3d. per hour, whereas a French manufacturer of a popular car only paid 6d. an hour. The secret of his success, Mr. Morris declared, was that by giving his men a good wage, they were enabled to go home, after a day's work, and enjoy themselves in a reasonable manner. Having done everything himself, from sweeping out the shop, to acting as governing director, he was led by his experience to believe, that a man turned out more work if he received a living wage. 17,000 men were now in the employment of his firm. There was no reason why Americans should produce cars more cheaply than an English concern. The British working man had more "ginger" in him, than had the American. A cause of much unemployment and industrial unrest to-day was that captains of industry would not realise that they must pay a reasonable wage, and that the men must be kept happy and contented, if a good output was to be secured. Politically, he was a Conservative, but he was on the side of labour all the time.

Mr. Morris added, that the week before he spoke, Morris Engines, Ltd., turned out 625 automobile engines.

Here is a tip which the Motor Cycle gives, among a cause of faulty steering. When a solo machine becomes difficult or "tricky" to steer, it is sometimes due to pitted ball races in the head. This can usually be identified by a tendency for the steering to "stick," in the dead-ahead position, and is frequently found on machines which are used for side-car work at times. The trouble lies in imperfect—perhaps badly hardened—races, each ball making a slight depression in the race, in its usual position, i.e., dead-ahead. No remedy is effective save renewal of the races, which means complete dismantling of the steering head. A fresh set of races is advisable, even if one only, is badly pitted, and great care should be taken to ensure that the new races are driven absolutely "home," with a suitable drift, in the head lug of the machine.

HOW TO GET GOOD SERVICE FROM MICHELIN TYRES

Keep tyres pumped up to correct pressure for the load they have to carry. We can tell you what this should be.

When tyres are under inflated there is continual internal friction between the foundation cord and the rubber, causing overheating of the tyre and consequent rapid deterioration.

Water can also enter causing rust, resulting eventually in the rims having sharp edges which cut the walls of the tyre near the bead.

Most cars in Hongkong run on under inflated tyres with the above disastrous results.

Have your wheels examined front and rear for 'trueness and tracking alignment. If they are at fault in this respect the tread of the cover is subject to a grinding action which quickly destroys the cover.

Keep tyres free from oil and grease.

Start and stop gently and take corners slowly.

Lastly—buy MICHELIN tyres from us and follow the above advice and tyre satisfaction is assured.

It is estimated that approximately $1,000,000 will be spent in the United States in highway improvement during the year 1924. In order to accommodate the enormous increase in motor vehicles.

The State of California, U.S.A. has adopted a new system of motor vehicle license taxes. Instead of basing the license fee on the horsepower of the vehicles as in the past, the new law provides for a flat tax of $3.00 on each passenger motor car, which is classed as a "non-commercial vehicle." This flat rate is to cover the cost of making the plates and the clerical work of registration. In addition to the flat rate, each owner pays a tax on each gallon of fuel purchased. Commercial vehicles are subject to the $3.00 flat rate plus a sliding scale of taxation based on the weight of the vehicle.

DESPITE RECORD PRODUCTION.

Detroit, March 15—Everything in the automotive industry is going up. This includes costs, materials, labour, production, shipping, sales, prices and demand for cars.

On the eve of what is expected to be the biggest season the automobile business has ever seen, factory wheels are spinning at the highest speed on record.

More cars are being made in Detroit to-day than at any time in its history. Production in the majority of the larger plants is fast reaching capacity and should reach maximum in six weeks if present plans are carried out.

NEW SALES RECORDS.

Several factories have turned in new production and sales records for January and February and at least three have made more in these months than during any months in their respective histories. It is interesting to note that in many cases these high marks failed to supply the demand for cars for immediate delivery, much less think of sending quantities of cars to warehouses to help meet the spring demand.

It is on this condition that certain manufacturers base their predictions that there will be a shortage of cars this spring. On the other hand, rising prices have encouraged many to buy now instead of in the spring, thereby saving from $20 to $70.

Records of practically all of the larger companies' business for the last two months showing increasing prosperity and plans laid for the next few months prove without question that motor leaders are confident of an unsurpassed selling season this spring.

On his return from an extended trip through the Southwest, H.H. Rice, president of Cadillac, predicts steady, conservative prosperity for the country as a whole in the absence of disturbing periods of either inflation or deflation, a substantial increase of motor car production during the year and an increase of 25 per cent. in the business of his own company.

REMARKABLE STRIDES.

Oaklands, Paigo-Jewett, Studebaker, Cadillac, Dodge Bros., Chevrolet, Ford and Overland have made remarkable strides in recent weeks. Oakland broke all sales marks for a single month, when, in February, sales exceeded those of the previous best month by more than 1,000 cars. Sales show a 300 per cent. increase over those of the same month a year ago.

Chrysler production is running at more than 100 cars a day, a remarkable achievement for a car that was announced only two months ago. Hupp is making about 175 cars a day, with the new club sedan comprising more than 50 per cent. of the output. Seventy-five per cent. of Hupp production is closed cars. Plans call for daily production of 200 cars within ten days.

In the last two months Buick shipped from its Detroit and Flint plants 10,317 freight cars of automobiles. This includes ten solid trainloads equally divided between the two months. Moon, now operating on a basis of 1,800 cars a month plans to increase production next week to the rate of 2,000 cars per month. After breaking all production records in January and breaking them again in February, Paigo has scheduled an output of 7,500 cars for March. Production fell short of filling the demand in the two preceding months.

Every indication points to a record-breaking spring business.

With the approach of summer, bathing places by motor will be coming into their own again. In addition to Repulse Bay and Castle Peak—the two most popular rendezvous hitherto—we shall be having Shekko Bay this year, though arrangements for dressing will probably have to be improvised, at least for the present. The beach is undoubtedly one of the finest in the Colony, and it is a pity that the road by which it is reached is not in better condition.

THE OVERHAULING MANIA.

LEAVE YOUR CAR ALONE

A correspondent writing to a motoring journal says:—

As I was reading the other day, motorists may be roughly divided into four classes. First, those who care only for the outside of their car; secondly, those who are conscientiously careful of the internal details; thirdly, those who mind both the inside and the outside; and fourthly, those who are content to wind up and get away. Quite so. And yet there is a fifth class—another interesting species by itself, an odd type whom I have often observed with mingled interest and pity—the "Overhauling Fiend." I wonder if you ever knew him, ever met him. He is surely an interesting study.

He is always there—his head between his legs and the machine, spanner in one hand, hammer in the other—screws, wrenches, nails, plugs, wire and all sorts of odds and ends lie scattered about him. Dirty hands, greased head—that's his lot. He's not simply content with mere riding of the car. He was not made that way, it's not his luck. His delight is more in "overhauling" it. Surely he has paid for it and he has a right to make any use of it he likes.

There you find him. You sympathise with him and inquire what's wrong. Oh, it's only a bad plug to-day, says he. And to-morrow, it's only the magnet; and the third day it is the carburettor which is being pumped in and blown out. Yes, it's the old story always at it. Quite determined to put an end to it—both to the trouble and to the engine naturally, of course. He must find out what is within, how the gears gripped and how the mixture mixed and why the piston panted. Thirst for knowledge, you see. And even when by some accident the engine runs smoothly and the machine works tip-top—he would wonder why it is running. He would hammer the plugs and turn the mixture and if it stops—he would wonder why it isn't running. So in both cases he must find out something to use his skill. After all, what are the tools supplied for by the makers. Yes, better leave him with his crazy post-mortem study.

AN ADVERTISING DODGE.

These two Harley-Davidson machines and Rolls-Royce car were recently used in Los Angeles to advertise the film "Long Live the King."

In every instruction book which is supplied with the car to the new purchaser by the makers, it is clearly laid down that the engine should on no account be opened or adjusted till there is a radical trouble. But our friend—the overhauling philosopher—probably thinks that these laws are for the "ordinary" and that they could be "more honoured in the breach rather than the observance of it."

I have actually for years known a friend in the legal profession, who is infected with this incurable malady. On all spare occasions, in season and out, you could see him there "overhauling." These two or three street boys, who used to gather round first out of curiosity and then began to take an interest in it—gradually learnt all the parts and set them back. They have now become "mistris" and are now making a living out of it. But that machine has not yet finished "overhauling" nor yet finished in the line. On the occasion of my friend's second purchase of a new machine—a Reading Standard Motor Cycle—some months back, I requested him not to try any more "overhauling" experiments on this one and I assured him a delightful service that he had had a useful experience from his first which would help him in enjoying his now purchase to a better degree and promised he wouldn't play with it as he had derived a great knowledge of the working parts from the first—for which he had worked so much on the old thing. So he did enjoy his rides for some time—but the old devil was up in him once more. For the last two months the machine is lying all opened to pieces. And well of course, he's "enjoying" his "overhauling" as usual.

There are, indeed, two ways you can get exercise out of a machine—be it a motor cycle or a car. You can "Overhaul" it or you can ride it. On the whole, I'm not sure that a man who takes his pleasure overhauling does not have the best of the bargain. For he is independent of the wind and the weather; he is not afraid of the police and traffic regulations; the condition of the road troubles him not. A pillar-wrench, a hammer and screw, and some dirty linen is all he wants to keep him happy for the day. The mistake some people make is in thinking they can get both forms of sport out of the same machine. Now that's impossible. For no machine can will stand the double strain. You must decide beforehand whether you are going to be an "overhauler" or a rider. For my own part, I don't hesitate to say that I prefer to ride and, therefore, I take care to have nothing near me that could tempt me to try my trick at "overhauling." The moral is:—To have a respectable drive you must respect your car; to enjoy a run in comfort, you should not discomfort your machine with a hammer on its head and a screw in its tail for old love's sake.

The Practical Reasons for Tyre Superiority

ALL the essentials of superior tyre performance are combined in the Firestone Cord.

The tread compound is exceedingly tough, wearing down evenly and very slowly. The body of the tyre is sturdily constructed of ply upon ply of gum-dipped cords, each cord completely insulated in live rubber; and internal friction, the usual cause of premature tyre failure, is prevented.

And the Firestone Cord possesses more than durability. Safety is assured by the many angles of the cross and square tread, while its pliant, flexible body protects the car and adds unusual comfort to motoring.

PRINCE'S FAVOURITE LINER. "Empress of France" to Go On World Tour.

To-day one of the most interesting ships on the Atlantic is the "Empress of France," favourite liner of the Prince of Wales when he crosses the "Big Pond" to visit his ranch near High River, Alberta, in Western Canada. During the war she was an armed cruiser of the British Admiralty and was flagship of the Tenth Cruiser Squadron, carrying at different times an admiral, vice admiral and a rear admiral. She mounted eight 6-inch cannon and two 12-pounder anti-aircraft guns, intercepted 15,000 ships and many times escorted convoys of from 14 to 22 ships carrying soldiers from the United States to and from the Great War. Since the war she has been thoroughly reconditioned twice and is now an oil burner and so modern that she has single bed-steads instead of berths in many of her rooms.

Next year the "Empress of France," leaving New York on January 27, will for the second time completely encircle the world, steaming about 30,000 miles and returning to New York via the Panama Canal on June first. She will devote four months to a voyage during which the globe-girdlers aboard will have time to see the world, visiting Madeira, Gibraltar, Algiers, Monaco, Naples, Haifa, (Palestine), Port Said, Suez, Bombay, Colombo, Singapore, Hongkong, Yokohama, Honolulu, San Francisco, Balboa, Colon, and Havana. During the winter and spring months of 1923 the "Empress of France" made a very successful cruise and her officers and crew are thoroughly experienced in navigating the world. While on war service she steamed 266,740 knots.

SPORTS PARS.

Interesting World Items.

Neither E. Myers nor H. Waddell are able to go on tour to South Africa. And W. W. Wakefield and G. S. Conway are not available.

J. A. Mackintosh, the Oxford University captain, is a son of Professor James Mackintosh, of Edinburgh University. The Scottish Rugby Union have been asked to contribute seven players to the British team to visit South Africa. That looks like an equal distribution between the four countries—England, Scotland, Ireland, and Wales.

The international cross-country race at Newcastle may be abandoned this year. France are objecting to travel so far from London owing to the expense and should they withdraw, as is probable, the event is likely to be abandoned.

The Turks are to take part in the Olympic Games "to help the development of sport among the younger generation." An American coach has been secured, and a sum of about £25,000 is to be devoted to training and the expense of the team.

Tom Madocley, the old Solkirk cricket professional of 1905-6-7, died some few weeks ago. On one occasion, against Leith Calcuttians, he secured all ten wickets for 20 runs.

E. G. Hayes, the old Surrey professional, is to take up his duties shortly as coach to the Leicestershire County Cricket Club. Major G. S. Powke will again captain the side.

The Leicestershire County Cricket Club report a profit of £1137 on last year's work. The club have no outstanding liabilities.

Dr. Milne, the old Aberdeen football player, and now of Aston Villa, may play some cricket with Warwickshire during the summer.

Thomas Bonnar, the old Musselburgh amateur, now golf professional to Elmira County Club, New York, is home on holiday in Musselburgh.

F. Gordon Lowe won the Montone Club's open lawn-tennis tournament singles by defeating the Italian Davis Cup player, H. L. de Morpurgo, by 3 sets to 2. The final of the ladies' singles provided another meeting between Milne, Longdon and Miss Ryan, and the French champion won 7-5, 6-1.

The Heart of Midlothian would take some comfort out of their Scottish Cup defeat in their share of the drawings, which must have amounted to over £800 from the Cup tie. About £3000 out of their Cup engagements was not bad going.

The figures as regards attendance and money at the Scottish Cup ties on a recent Saturday are puny compared with those for the English ties. At the latter close upon 200,000 spectators were present, and the revenue amounted to over £14,200.

Goddard is to meet Samson, the Gorman heavyweight boxer, at Berlin shortly. Samson is a good name for a fighter. Boxing is said to be going strongly in Berlin.

Was there ever before three pairs of brothers playing in the same international fifteen? There were the Stephansons, the Collops, and the Hewitts in the Irish team last month.

Captain J. H. Parsons, who played in several matches for Warwickshire County Cricket Club, has been elected captain of the Warwickshire team for the forthcoming season.

ANOTHER SPOT FOR TOURISTS.

Some of the Charms of Alaska Outlined.

The thousand-mile voyage from Vancouver, British Columbia, to Skagway, Alaska, grows yearly more popular and the demand for passages is so heavy that the Canadian Pacific, whose "Princesses" are the most favoured ships for this trip, is now having built in England, two larger and more luxurious boats for its Pacific Coast service. The round voyage covers nine days, but most tourists prefer to stop over for a later boat, for Alaska is a land of magnificent distances and charms. In order to get a comprehensive idea of this vast country, one should spend at least a month there. The first stop after leaving Vancouver is Alert Bay, a village on Cormorant Bay. It is famous for its totem poles, for its population is largely Indian. After crossing Queen's Charlotte Sound, Prince Rupert, Canada's most northerly important port is reached. Between the last strip of open water is passed. Ketchikan fronts on United States water, and a stop there permits visits to the town's stores and a pretty waterfall. Wrangell, named after a one-time Russian governor, on the Stikine River, is worth while seeing and a short distance beyond it the ship enters Wrangell Narrows. Juneau, the capital, sitting on its billy site, is the next attraction, after which the passage of Lynn Canal, made and Skagway reached.

THE STRAIGHT LINE.

One reason every woman is reducing these days is so that she can wear these straight, boyish frocks that are the rule of the day. This one is of printed silk in all the crude colours, with pleated sections, buttons going down the front, and a belt of bright red leather.

THE "TIRED" FROCK.

To freshen a frock that has lost the first bloom of its youth there is nothing like the touch of lingerie. For this purpose the novelty-makers have devised an infinite variety of little cuffs and collars. These are often made of net and lace, so that they can be easily washed, and after being stretched and dried have no need of the iron to render them presentable. The collars are usually simple little turn-overs, while the cuffs may take on more generous proportions and resemble the most sizable of gauntlets, reaching well nigh halfway to the elbow.

TOUCH OF ORIENT.

There's a real feeling of the orient and the mysterious east in this gown formed from green, and silver Persian scarfs and a jewelled belt, but it is not too eccentric for formal wear. The jewelled tassels hold the skirt in place.

NOTES FROM PARIS.

As a natural sequence after the unbolted straight modes of last season, one has looked forward to, and found, a few Empire and Directoire models among the new showings. One has also found, however, that many models along the lines favoured last season are still popular.

Fullness in front and straight backs continue "in." It is too comfortable a fashion to die in one season. It also lends itself admirably to many of the spring and summer materials. A variety of what the French call "gros" tissues are voguish. By "gros" they mean rather coarsely woven or comparatively heavy in weight. Many linens and new weaves in cottons and silks show one or both of these features.

An amusing new coiffure rule is set by day and long by night. It sounds difficult, but must be done. For we can have no hair under the wigs of the moment, while the diadem head-dress which is essential for evening wear looks all wrong on a bobbed or shingled head.

So we buy back our tresses at ruinous prices and pins and persistence make quite a success of these adaptable heads of ours.

Beach gowns are seen in striped and plaid taffetas, in jades, cerise, apricot and black, trimmed with shells and provided with fascinating caps. Flat, scallop shells, for example, appearing on a scarlet gown, and blue-black mussel shells on a black satin one.

Wear your earrings so long that they touch the shoulder—the longer and the more glittering the better, and the more antique, the more "dernier ori."

The most popular frock is still the clinging envelope, into which one wriggles and out of which one is skinned. One is all over beads, but very flat everywhere, with one's hair short, almost scalped.

RED ALPACA.

One of the fashion authorities of Paris has said that the morning gowns are unusually gay while the afternoon gowns are preternaturally discreet. This fact draws the two styles close together in line, and widens the difference between them in the matter of colour. A charming morning gown recently designed was of bright Chinese red alpaca piped with white. The lines of the gown were narrow, clinging well to the figure, the sleeves fitting the arms so that they wrinkled in an attractive way, as long kid gloves have a habit of doing when worn by a woman with pretty arms. The neck was round, and so high that it covered the collar-bone, and was adorned with a double collar of white organdie piped in the same shade of red as the gown.

COMMON SENSE IN SHOPPING.

Shop with a clear idea in your head as to what you want.

Falling this, tell the assistant as nearly as you can what you are looking for, and ask for advice.

Don't expect the shopman to have a superhuman knowledge of your requirements.

Be considerate, but, on the other hand, consider your own interests, and don't buy the right material in the wrong colour because the shade you desire is not forthcoming.

If you are strong-minded shop with a friend; you will not allow her to over-persuade you against your own choice.

But if you are susceptible to comments from others, shop alone. You may feel disappointed in your selection later, but at least you will have the satisfaction of knowing that you were not coerced.

SQUARE-NECKED FROCKS RETURN.

The bateau neckline, which has remained unchanged for season after season, seems to be near its end. In its stead there are the round neck and the square neck. Both of these necklines are used by the style creators with good effect.

Another change in the chemise frock, due to the Empire styling, is the fact that the new gowns are out to fit the shoulder and the armhole very neatly. The drop shoulder effect, with its attendant looseness about the armhole, seems to be utterly out of it, so if you wish to be in style you will rip the sleeves out of all your old dresses, and cut the upper parts of the bodices to fit your figure quite smoothly from neck to the bust.

This will, of course, shorten your sleeves, but as three-quarter length sleeves, which fit the arm smoothly, are featured by a number of Parisian dressmakers, you have only to shorten your sleeves a little more and purchase some "long-handled" gloves to be quite fashionable.

NEW PARIS FASHION FEATURE.

(Special to "Hongkong Telegraph.")

A very unusual style of collar is carried out in white organdie, which is fastened on the left shoulder, giving a somewhat cow-boy appearance.

Underneath is a frilled organdie collar, which is not attached to the frock at all, there being a space between the end of the collar and the neck of the frock.

The handkerchief collar is very effective when it is matched by another on the hips.

SNAPSHOTS AT A DRESS SHOW.

Daffodil yellow, walls, black lacquer, blue, and gold brocade curtains—the new dress salon of Peron in Regent street.

Massed flowers in mixed colours—flame-coloured anemones, white lilac, blue lily, yellow tulips and feathery orchids.

A hidden, living, breathing mannequin, coming and going between the black velvet and the saleswomen bustling about cheerfully; a crowd of intent and well-dressed spectators.

Short patterned or embroidered coats with scarf collars, and worn with pleated skirts of plain materials.

Brown satin shoes and beige stockings worn with every type of afternoon frock.

Jumpers straight, close-fitting, and reaching to hip level. Hats with drooping feathers.

Costly lining of the same material as the dress, collar and

ing. The rubber sponge, with its advantages over the natural sponge with its slimy tendencies, is too well known to need emphasis.

All kinds of brushes are made with bristles of pure rubber. A carpet broom of this type draws out the dirt easily and does not raise, scratch or dull.

Nail and bath brushes cleanse the pores and give healthy, glowing skin without roughening the skin while a rubber-bristled hand brush sets the pores and makes the skin smooth and supple without raising the hair.

THE FUTURE LIFE: III.

By the Rev. G. R. Lindsay, M. A.

The third great argument for the reality of the Future Life is based upon the experience of Christ. Dr. Jones, in his book on Immortality, says that: "It is the most conclusive of all. We are out of the region of inference and assumption and are in the region of historical fact. What happened to Jesus Christ was this: He really died and He really lived again. That is sober fact. He took His grave with Him. Jesus died and lived again, and in that Resurrection experience we have the final and satisfying proof of the life beyond. For His experience was not a solitary and unique experience. It was a representative one. He was 'the first-fruits of them that sleep.'"

"If a man die, shall he live again?" I look at the empty grave of Jesus and I can confidently give the answer: "Yes." The Resurrection of Jesus sets all doubts at rest. It converts all promise and instinctive desire into assurance and fact.

Men argued for years about the possibility of there being another country out yonder towards the West. They set forth various reasons for believing that there was such a world. But what forever settled the matter and made the New World not a guess or a theory or speculation was the experience of Columbus. He sailed till he discovered, and then he returned to say: "There is a land out yonder; I have been there." Jesus is our Columbus. When men lost their dear ones or were themselves near the valley of the shadow, they used to wonder if there was any land beyond the sunset, or merely blackness of night. But we wonder now no more. For Jesus has travelled there and has come back to say that beyond the grave there is "A land of pure delight, where saints immortal reign."

Death is no longer an undiscovered country. Jesus has come back and brought immortality to light. We do not mourn our dead as those who have no hope. "If a man die, shall he live again?" Yes, he shall. The Future Life, which the nature of man and the character of God seemed to demand, is made certain by the Resurrection of Christ. Here lies comfort for the mourner and for all who yearn for the fullest life. Death is not a catastrophe, but a passage-way. It is not annihilation but a transition to the Father's House. Our dear ones have not perished, nor shall we. This corruptible shall put on incorruption and this mortal shall put on immortality. O, Death, thou hast lost thy sting; O, Grave, thou art robbed of thy victory. For God has given the victory to us, mortal men, through the Son, Christ Jesus our Lord.

DAY BY DAY.

Following Pola Negri's remarkable Oriental pageant play, "One Arabian Night," which is showing for the last time to-day, Coronet Theatre will screen tomorrow another notable picture in "Peacock Alley." Based on the story by Quida Borgore, "Peacock Alley" bears the Metro imprint, and this, coupled with the fact that an accomplished screen actress like Mae Murray takes the leading role, bespeaks its certain merit.

No reminder is needed of the mystic entertainment provided by the Chetalo and Palermo troupe at the Queen's Theatre to-day and to-morrow. These old favourites are here for a brief season. Their renown is sufficient recommendation. Another attraction for the same performances is "The Forgotten Law," a screen drama full of human pathos which does not drag. "Bride 13" is the picture for the 15 and 17 shows.

FIRE AT EATON HALL.

What might have been a serious fire at Eaton Hall, the seat of the Duke of Westminster, four miles from Chester, was averted one Saturday recently by the timely discovery of fire by the Duke himself. As he was walking along the corridor near the wing in which the library is placed he detected a smell of burning, and found part of the flooring of the library on fire. He

"THE QUANTS."

NEW SHOW A GREAT SUCCESS.

If "nothing succeeds like success," then there should be a bumper house at the Theatre Royal this evening when the "Quants" repeat their impression of the "Co-Optimists." Last evening's effort warrants every praise. There was not one dull moment, and it is difficult to single out any part of the performance for special mention.

The concluding item was a skit on choral societies, and Mr. Salisbury, in the role of conductor, kept the audience in high humour with his extravagant postures. Impressions of well-known London artists attempting to sing sentimental ballads were thoroughly enjoyed, and the short sketches which were interspersed proved highly entertaining. The programme has been well chosen and it can be recommended as one of the best shows seen in the Colony for some time. An additional reason why there should be a full house to-night is that this will be the "Quants' farewell to Hongkong."

gave the alarm, and with several of the guests the household staff attacked the flames with fire extinguishers and buckets of water. The Chester Fire Brigade was summoned, and found that the Duke and his helpers had succeeded in checking the progress of the fire, which was put out in about an hour.

SET A GOOD EXAMPLE.

In order to get that "10 minutes extra sleep," Mr. Mann made his breakfast break all speed records between his mouth and his stomach.

All of Mr. Mann's children would be there and their young minds came to associate the breakfast meal with some sort of a game in which their daddy raced against time for the office.

Children are great mimics, so far as their elders are concerned.

So it was, only a matter of time before the various Mann youngsters were bolting their breakfasts in the rush to get to school and then doing the same at their tiffin.

Children are impatient creatures, at best, and it is sufficiently hard to get them to take time at their meals, without setting a bad example.

Malnutrition or underweight in children is not always a sign of extreme poverty. Hundreds of children, in families where excellent food is served, suffer from lack of nutrition, due to hasty meals and food bolting.

Teach your children to eat properly. Get them in the right eating habit early in life, then practice what you teach!

MONSTERS OF THE DEEP.

Immutable Law Of The Ocean.

The irrevocable law of the ocean is that Life lives on Life. We see this in a great measure on Earth; but in the Sea it is as immutable and universal as the laws of Ebb and Flow.

Indeed, seeing the incessant and ferocious struggle that is eternally going on it is a marvel that fish should survive at all, let alone increase and multiply. The saving clause is their swiftness and incomprehensible rapidity of flight. But nature has also provided strange means of defence and camouflage. Setting aside the mammalian or gigantic cutacea of the aquatic world, such as the whales, walrus, sea-lions, seals, and so on, all of which are in a class by themselves, there are yet such monsters of the deep as to keep the imagination at full stretch and make the hair of any respectable head stand on end. To speak also of the sharks, the dreaded white shark, the black-thirty pirate of the ocean—happily a stranger to our seas, although occasionally a small specimen is seen—sometimes measuring between thirty and forty feet in length, which can easily bite a man in half; the thresher shark, which amuses himself by tearing lumps of living flesh out of the unfortunate whale; and the hammer-headed shark, the eyes of which are set at each of the strange hammer-like projections from which it takes its name; or the basking shark, which has been known to attain a length of thirty-seven feet or more; to these in detail each would require a column to itself, but there is a kind of relation which inhabits our shores, and is rapidly becoming a favourite—as great a favourite among deep-sea anglers over here as is tarpon-fishing in the West Indies or Tunafishing in California; this "tope" is a voracious and destructive fish.

It is found more often on the southern than the northern coast, and accounts for an enormous number of fish. Topofishing is a favourite sport at Herne Bay, and many a fine specimen is to be seen there.

SHARK-LIKE CREATURE.

It is a long, shark-like creature, the back being of a dark, slaty grey, coming lighter towards the belly which is practically white. Like other species of its family, it brings forth its young alive. Special rods and tackle are used in its capture, and the thrills are many and numerous before the monster is subdued, for sometimes it runs to a length of nearly eight feet.

Another fish that may truly be called a monster of the deep is the conger, which is rapidly coming into favour with British sea anglers. It is not uncommon to find these fish weighing anything up to fifty pounds, and during some of the fishing competitions round the coast fish of over sixty pounds were taken on rod and line last year. There is on record the capture of an enormous ray on the coast of New Jersey which measured eighteen feet in diameter, and is said to have weighed five tons. These rays are also very voracious, and the destruction they do on the nursery beds is immense. All are fish that come to their net—naked or shelled, molluscs or crustaceans are all swallowed without ado. In our seas they, as I have said, attain to a great size. Skate (Raie Batis) weighing two hundred pounds are not uncommon. But, perhaps, the palm must be given to the immense devil rays of the South Sea Islands. These monsters are frequently fifteen to twenty feet broad, and when basking on the surface look like flat roofs. The Society Islanders hunt the devil ray with harpoons even to this day.—A.M.Y. in Ex.

ADVENTURES IN ASIA.

Story of Man and Mystery.

Dr. Ossendowski seems to have the use of a time machine, and to be set down at intervals in conditions more coherently primordial or ultimate than any conjured up by Mr. Wells. He looks about him with the intense but unprejudiced curiosity of the scientific adventurer, and then returns—at least he has returned hitherto—to report on the creatures he has seen.

They, and their surroundings are of an epoch not our own, and many of them in all but shape might be dragons of the prime. Dr. Ossendowski in his book "Man and mystery in Asia" (Arnold), designates the regions where they rove and disport themselves, and the four parts into which his book is divided might be headed The Yoncosi River, the Ussurian Plains, Sakhalin, and The Steppes below the Altai Mountains, but such names, though they set the mind wandering, are too definite to suggest the mystery on which the title rightly insists. The reader, though he may be inclined at first to regard the empty map on the cover of the book as inadequate, will end by finding it superfluous. He will soon extend the scope of the name given to the Ussurian Plains behind Vladivostok by the author, and think of the whole sphere of his exploration as "The Tiger Country."

When we have to take a man's word for the strange and terrible things he describes, we are entitled to ask his credentials. Dr. Ossendowski's are impressive. A Pole by birth, he is "Officier d'Academie Française"; his scientific qualifications are too many to enumerate; it is enough to state that he is an industrial chemist and a practical geologist to establish that he is a trained observer; his having acted as Fuel Administrator for the Russian Armies under General Kuropatkin during the Russo-Japanese War is evidence of his familiarity with the official system of the old regime; his having been sentenced to death as a Revolutionary in 1906 indicates that his indictment of the Bolsheviks is not that of a partisan.

"TIGER CLUB."

His journeys were undertaken for scientific, not for political, purposes, and what he tells us of the methods of the rulers of Russia, old and new, is what was forced upon his attention during his explorations. He recounts the atrocities of men as so much natural history—as Fabre might recount the raids of wasps on beetles. There is a chain of cause and effect. There were irremediable criminals in Russia as elsewhere; under the Tsars they were congregated in convict prisons in Sakhalin. The policy is intelligible; the French follow it, and a recent French book, "Au Bague," exposed the abuses which are its defects; we have our own record in Australia to keep us humble. The system demands the supervision of the kind of man who partitioned tracks and isolates a malaria germ and sees to it that it shall not breed. Under the Tsars the prison officials were men called themselves for good reason: One of their diversions was obtained from "A Tiger Club"; it met at the club house and drank; the lights were put out; all the members, except two chosen by lot, withdrew to the top rungs of ladders placed along the walls—there to await their turn in the game; of the two, one, the hunter, was given a revolver, the other, the tiger, a ball; boots were removed; the tiger crawled, and the hunter stalked; then the tiger rang his bell and the hunter shot; if he missed, the roles were exchanged. It may be imagined how such men, invested with absolute power, treated convicts who were admittedly brutes. The official system condoned the flogging of the child of a convict for no better reason than that a prisoner had escaped and the child might have seen him pass.

RELEASED CONVICTS.

The convicts, thus maddened against society, have now been released by the Bolsheviks and invested with such authority as exists—

"The Communist Soviet Government in Petrograd and Moscow calmly reinstated the Tsar's policy and looked indulgently upon cruelties, which differed from those of the old regime in that the blood flowed not from the bodies of some thousands of criminals and socially dangerous degenerated, but from those of 3,000,000 intelligentsia. The surviving victims of the bloody benches and rods of Sakhalin adapted to the intelligentsia in ways a hundred times more bloody this corrective system they had learned in the prisons of Due, Alexandrovsk, and Onor."

It is necessary to insist on the defects and laxity of Russian administration because it is the background to all Dr. Ossendowski's adventures and experiences; but it is not his subject. His chance-met factotum Hak—who he employed to catch butterflies—had committed 15 murders; when a knife was wanted for the skinning of a bird Hak produced a thin blade from his hip-pocket—a pocket made in his skin; Hak explained that all old convicts have pockets of this kind; how else could they cut fotters and bars and fight gaoles and pursuers? Tartars—people whom we have taken to symbolize ruthlessness—appear here as pitiless figures "fleeing before the terror of the Soviets." Their horses are stolen—and the arch-criminal is a great red stallion. It is a country where man is always fighting—if not of necessity, then for fun; he matches himself with a knife against a bear in a set battle; he rides down wolves swinging a lash with a heavy leaden ball at the end.

GILBERT AND SULLIVAN SOCIETY.

A meeting of admirers of Gilbert and Sullivan has been held at Essex Hall, the outcome of which was the formation of the Gilbert and Sullivan Society. The hall was crowded, and the enthusiastic remembrance of the first night of one of the famous operas. The chief aim of the new organisation is to maintain the traditions of the operas and to arrange lectures and social gatherings.

A DISAPPOINTED MAN.
When the magistrate at Thames Police Court inflicted upon a man a small fine for drunkenness the defendant said he had not got the money and the magistrate ordered him in default to be detained for the day. The Defendant: Now I am very disappointed. I wanted to go the boat race and see my favourite Dark Blue win.
